Policy Statement

Students that wish to be leaders on campus are held to a high standard of behavioral expectations.

Policy Procedures

Student leadership is a vital and important aspect to the community at CU. These positions help direct the student body while building skills necessary to be leaders in life. Leadership positions include resident assistants, student council, fellowship officers, class officers, organizational officers, and/or other positions as they develop. Students in these positions must meet the following criteria:

- The student did not accumulate more than 20 points during the prior semester.
- The student has not accumulated more than 20 points during the current semester.
- The student is not on disciplinary or academic probation.
- The student has not exhibited any behavior that is not harmonious with the spirit of student life at CU.
